

Santa Clara, April 27, 1930.

It required just seventy eight years for the University of Santa Clara to come to a realization that something has been lacking toward the perfect success of this otherwise successful institution; that something- according to Rev. Father James J. Lyon, S.J.- being the "feminine touch," the "mothers' hand." This lack however shall no longer constitute a bar for it has been supplied in the ~~C~~ Catala Club, organized this date; its membership to include the mothers, sisters and feminine friends of students, the wives of Alumnists, feminine ~~friends~~ benefactors of the university, the wives of benefactors, and lastly, although by no means of minor importance, the feminine descendants of early day Spanish families. Of these families it may be said, as was expressed by
