

Rome: Better Than Cafeteria Meal

By Dede Moon

Thirty Santa Clara students returned to the University this quarter with new perspectives and insights - a year older and wiser as a result of two semesters of study and travel in Europe.

The consensus is that the Loyola program at Rome is the best in Europe and the Middle East. The Loyola Rome Center offers an accredited Liberal Arts Department, study in English in your major field, an excellent Italian course, and a highly qualified faculty including members and participants in the Ecumenical Council.

Shaw shared the experience of dorm life in the 1960 Olympic Center with 170 American students from all the United States. Classes were held four days a week with three day weekends for travel.

Loyola placement is becoming increasingly competitive each year. Initially a 2.2 grade point was required but this has been steadily rising and is approaching a 3.0 due to the growing number of applicants. Capacity enrollment at the present time is approximately 210 students; however, new housing facilities are under construction with hopes of accommodating 450 students in the next two years. Steve Dombink advises that those who are interested should talk to students who have returned from Rome for information or letters of recommendation.

Since returning to Santa Clara some of the Santa Clara vagabonds feel confined by too many self-imposed by the student.

Alice Calek, a senior history major from Illinois comment-ad, "I think Europe for junior year is really a good idea. I think it is the best way to see Europe. Sophomore year is too early. It is to anticlimatic to come back from Europe and spend two more years in school. One year is hard enough. You become too independent."

Frosh Hold Elections

Freshman class elections will be held on November 12 and 13, 1964, rather than on Nov. 19 and 20 as originally scheduled. Polls will be open from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 12. Run-offs will be held during the same hours on Friday.

Petitions for nomination may be drawn at the ASUSC offices, and must be returned with 25 signatures by 5:00 p.m. tomorrow (Oct. 30). To be eligible for office, a candidate must have at least a 2.0 average (by mid-term) with no failures, and he must not be on social or disciplinary probation. A list of candidates will be posted on Monday (Nov. 2).

CAMPAIGN

Campaigning starts Thursday, November 5, and ends on Wednesday, Nov. 11. A convocation of the freshman class will be held on November 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Benson dining area. Candidates for class offices will make their final campaign speeches at this convocation.

Frosh Senate elections are scheduled for December 3, and petitions for that election will be drawn on Wed., November 18.

No Promiscuous Parking At "U"

The A.S.U.S.C. has issued new parking regulations. All cars owned by students must have stickers and must be parked in designated areas. Promiscuous parking will not be tolerated.

Cars owned by sophomores, juniors, and seniors may be parked in the Dunne Hall and Engineering Center parking lots. Cars owned by freshmen, designated by a different sticker from that of upperclassmen, must be parked behind Graham Hall. Upperclassmen may also park behind Graham.

STICKY

There will be fines for any car with a sticker that is parked in the wrong place. Cars with no stickers will be towed away at the owner's expense. All students with cars have been notified about picking up stickers. The new regulations go into effect soon and will be strictly enforced.

Parking regulations will again be revised when the new dorm is built in the Dunne Hall parking lot. Construction is scheduled to begin in the spring.

Uniformity?

by MIKE McLAUGHLIN

DO YOU THINK DORM REGULATIONS SHOULD BE THE SAME FOR MEN AND WOMEN?

RON FLYNN, ECONOMICS, SENIOR, LA CANADA, CALIFORNIA

Ronald Flynn

The only time I think they should be the same is in the case of co-ed dorms. However, such establishments are non-existent at SCU. I think, therefore, that the rules for curfew and sign-out should remain different. But I think the enforcement of minor rules should be the same. For instance, the demerit system in the women's dorms is too strict. Prefects in the men's dorms are not forced to employ such measures and are still able to maintain adequate discipline.

PAT TAYLOR, PSYCHOLOGY, FRESHMAN, SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA

I think the dorm rules should be the same for both men and women. The one exception being curfew on Friday and Saturday nights. The boys should be allowed sufficient time over the girl's curfew so that they can bring their dates home on time and still make room check.

TOM McCALL, MECHANICAL ENGINEERING, SENIOR, BURLINGAME, CALIFORNIA

The same regulations should apply to men and women of the University. In addition to obtaining an education we must acquire the maturity to live an adult life. An equal amount of maturity will be required of both sexes in later life. It seems implausible that the same degree of maturity can be developed by applying a stricter set of rules to one sex.

DICK GIBBONS, ACCOUNTING, SENIOR, SARATOGA, CALIFORNIA

NO. Parents send daughters to institutions like Santa Clara to protect them from the evils of the real world. If co-eds shared the same regulations with men, which are non-existent insofar as enforcement is concerned, they would be brought face to face with reality. Trauma.

KEN COVENY, ENGINEERING, JUNIOR, MARINA, CALIFORNIA

Basically, dorm regulations should be similar for men and women. However, I think the men should be allowed later room checks and more liberal extensions, particularly on weekends. But it must be kept in mind that equivalent dorm regulations presuppose equal dorm facilities. In addition, there should be equally reasonable control of prefects by their respective deans, and equally reasonable deans.
